POEM

When I'm Gone by Lyman Hancock

When I come to the end of my journey
And I travel my last weary mile,
Just forget, if you can, that I ever frowned
And remember only my smile.

Forget unkind words I have spoken,
Remember some good I have done.
Forget that I ever had heartache
And remember I've also had fun.

Forget that I've stumbled and blundered
And sometimes fell by the way.
Remember I have fought some hard battles
And won, by the close of the day.

Then forget to grieve for my going,
I would not have it for a day,
But in summer, please gather some flowers
And remember the place where I lay.

And come in the shade of the evening,
When the sun paints the sky in the west,
Stand for a few moments beside me
And remember only my best.

A bouquet of yellow roses is positioned in the upper right corner of the page. The roses are in various stages of bloom, with some fully open and others as buds. They are set against a light-colored wooden background. The text is centered on the page, overlaid on the white background.
