Then Joy Stepped In

Said she, 'I will not live with grief from morrow unto morrow. My heart cries out for some relief, 'Good-bye, my little sorrow.' She closed the windows of her home and pulled down every blind. 'I'm going forth, ' she cried, 'to roam. You, Grief, can stay behind.' 'And I'll be gone the livelong day, expect me back to-night.'

Grief wanly watched her go away into the warmth and light; With quickened step and brightened eyes she mingled with the throng. Instead of pale Grief's moans and sighs she heard Endeavour's song. She saw a sister, crossed the road and asked her how she fared: Then helped to lift her heavy load and in the burden shared.

Throughout the day Self was suppressed whilst Service took its place. When she returned at night to rest - of Grief there was no trace! But Joy stepped forth and sweetly said, 'May I now be your friend instead?'

by Wilhelmina Stitch

